ARABIAN NIGHTS

Final Entertainment at Made-in-America Fete a Huge Success.

The Arabian Night Fete and Tableaux given last night in Horticultural Hall as a culmination to the three days' Made-in-America Fair was a fitting climax to this wholly successful undertaking, and the workers who had striven with such untiring energy felt their efforts well rewarded by the audience which packed the hall to the doors. Indeed, even the charming wife of one of our plutocrats, arriving rather late, found herself unable to secure a seat. The performance began with the Oriental scene, in which Mrs. J. Kearsley Mitchell was enthroned as queen, surrounded by her slaves and attendants. Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's address being omitted. In this scene a number of dances were executed by well-known society people. In the intermission, Lillian Emerson, a child dancer, performed wonderfully.

The tableaux were given with a fidelity to detail which was quite remarkable and most artistic. As the curtain was drawn the pictures were revealed set in a huge gold frame, with a neutral background, which made the figures stand out in bold relief. A pleasant surprise was the presence of Miss Angelica Brown and of Maurice Roche, who came over from New York to appear in the poses. Miss Brown posed prettily as "1830," and Mr. Roche appeared with Miss Hannah Randolph in "Please," a fetching study of a harlequin and columbine. Following the tableaux supper was served, during which Miss Perot and Mr. Taylor, professional dancers, performed.

The dancing competitions proved most thrilling. Mrs. Gardner Cassatt and Andrew Wheeler, Jr., were finally awarded the decision for the one-step, and for the fox trot Miss Margot Soull and Saunders L. Meade proved the winners.
